The Arkansas Legislature

LITTLE ROCK, May 21.—In the House to-day a resolution was introduced and referred to the joint committee on investigation of the conduct of Arkansas Representatives and Senators, asking Clayton and Dorsey to resign.

The most of Baxter's forces are disbanded and returning and resuming their usual conditions.

Pacific Mail Affairs.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Rufus Hatch informs the Associated Press Agent that he holds proxies for twelve or twenty millions Pacific Mail stock; that Jay Gould will not be elected Director, nor anybody to represent him unless the President and Directors; that Smith and Osborn are so inclined. The scientific men hitherto have cordially supported the policy of the present management. Stockwell and Bradbury will retire. Union of Williams & Cohen will fill one vacancy. The other new directors are not yet known.

Decline of Central Pacific Bonds.

The continued heavy decline here and abroad in Central Pacific bonds excites much speculation as to the cause. The explanation acceptable as most plausible, is a rumor which almost takes pains to specially contradict that the California's [illegible] will default in its interest soon due. This adds to the growing distrust in everything controlled by the Central managers, and the explanation which makes an impression, attributes the decline to the sale by the city of Geneva of four hundred thousand Central bonds, bequeathed thereto by the late Duke of Brunswick. The fall in Union Pacific is accepted as a natural result of Central decline.

It is stated that Jay Gould and [illegible] that a secret understanding [illegible] between him and the managers of the Pacific Mail with reference to the results of the election next week. This accounts for special efforts to dupe the credulous by the story that Russell Sage accompanied Gould and his intimates on a pleasure sailing trip last week.

A special from Mill river says all the corpses are recovered, numbering 147.

A party of 150 Mormons arrived to-day and start for Salt Lake to-morrow.

Death of a Scion of Royalty.

PARIS, May 21.—Duke de Montpensier's son died to-day.

Encouraging News from the Spanish Republicans.

MADRID, May 21.—A fight between Carlists and Republicans in the province of Tarragona to-day resulted in the defeat of the former, with a loss of many killed and many wounded. The Republican loss was slight.

The Carlists in Catamonia have been defeated by the Nationals with a loss of 21 killed and 11 prisoners. Concha has reoccupied Orduna.

LONDON, May 21.—The Czar left England to-day.

The New Ministry.

LONDON, May 22.—A Paris dispatch to the Standard says it is thought that the combination made last night to complete the Ministry will be successful, and that the new Cabinet will probably be promulgated to-day, with De Cazes or Dandiffret Pasquier as the head. Bonapartists and legitimists will be excluded.

Duel between Notables.

PARIS, May 21.—In a duel between Prince Meltor [illegible] and Count Montebello the Count was wounded in the arm and disabled.

Crusaders Arrested in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, May 21.—Forty crusaders were arrested and brought before the Mayor this afternoon charged with obstructing the sidewalks. They were dismissed with an admonition that the law must be enforced, and that on the next offense they would be punished.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC R. R.

The following are the leading features of the bill providing for the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railroad submitted to the House of Commons by Hon. Alex. McKenzie, Minister of Public Works. It is the bill discussed in the House on the 20th inst., a report of which debate was published in the OREGONIAN of yesterday.

The road is to be divided into four sections; the first will extend from Lake Nipissing to the upper or western end of Lake Superior; the second from Lake Superior to Fort Garry; the third from Fort Garry to some point between Fort Edmonton and the Rocky Mountains; the fourth, from the last-named section to the Pacific Ocean, at some point in British Columbia. There will be two branches, one from Fort Garry to Pembina, the other westward from the eastern terminus, south of Lake Nipissing and eastward to some point on the Ottawa river. The last named branch is a feature of the undertaking which was not included in the original Canadian Pacific Railway bill.

The act fixes a subsidy of $10,000 per mile, a land grant of 20,000 acres per mile, and a guarantee of 4 per cent for a given number of years on a sum to be stated in the contract for each mile of the section or sub-section contracted for, the tenders for the work to state the lowest sum per mile for which guarantee is to be required. The money subsidy will be paid upon monthly estimates and in proportion to the nature and cost of the work performed. The land is to be in twenty square mile blocks along the line of the road. Care will be taken to provide against land jobbery by the Government keeping control over two thirds of the land, which is to be sold by them at prices to be agreed upon, the proceeds to be accounted for to the company half yearly in proportion to the work done. The remaining third will be handed over to the company in the same proportion. The lands are to be available and of fair average quality. If such lands cannot be found on the road itself they are to be allotted elsewhere. The cost of the surveys will be a charge upon the subsidy.

The bill will give powers to the Governor in Council to grant a bonus to any company that may with grants of land or money from the Province of Ontario secure the construction of the branch lines extending from the eastern terminus of the main line to connect with existing or proposed lines of railway in Ottawa Valley. The Governor in Council will also be empowered to make with the company or companies owning any part of the said branch railway, arrangements for leasing to them any portion which may belong to the Government. The leases, however, will not be allowed to exceed a term of ten years, and to be binding must first be approved by the House of Commons. Power is given to the Governor in Council to suspend progress of the works at any time until the next ensuing session of Parliament.

The bill will contain no stipulation as to the time to be occupied in the construction of the road. It will recognize the authority of Parliament over the judgment, discretion and good faith of the administration to whom the duty of setting the work in motion and letting the contracts is intrusted. The branch lines connecting the eastern terminus with the Georgian Bay and the Ottawa river and Fort Garry with Pembina will be rapidly pushed forward. The latter only waits for information as to the progress made by American companies, connection with which it is intended to establish.

WESTON'S 500-MILE WALKING MATCH.—A New York dispatch of May 11th says Weston began his 500-mile walking match at five minutes past 12 o'clock this morning in the hall of the American Institute. James Gordon Bennett accompanied him in his first four rounds of the hall, which were made at a sparking gait. Weston expects to finish his task by 11 o'clock on Saturday next. He is endeavoring to-day to make 115 miles within the twenty four hours. A later dispatch of the same date says: Weston accomplished 112 miles in 23 hours 50 minutes, and his second [illegible]. He will rest until 5:50 A. M., when he resumes his walk.

BADLY INDORSED.—Somebody sends us a copy of the Washington Chronicle containing a marked and underscored communication and editorial alluding to the communication in which the Sanborn contract and the law authorizing it are both highly commended. We believe, from all the evidence taken by the Committee on Ways and Means, that the law should never have been passed and that the contract, as to its letting and execution is an outrage. But if we had not this mass of evidence to enlighten us, the indorsement of the Chronicle would prejudice us against Sanborn and all connected with him.—Sac. Union.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—The habeas corpus case of the Chinese woman Ah Lin in the Twelfth District Court to-day developed features of the infamous traffic in Chinese women that is carried on here. The officers have in their possession a translation of a document signed by this woman, her master and one other, in which she agrees for the sum of $470 to prostitute her person four years, and if she fails to meet all the conditions of the agreement forfeits all money and must go back to her master.

It is stated to-day that [illegible] is still in this city, but no reporter has yet been able to see him.

Greenbacks unchanged since yesterday.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Allen Hunkler, convicted of the murder of his [illegible], was sentenced to the State prison to-day for a term of five years. The case will be appealed to the Supreme Court.

The steamer Nevada leaves as an extra; sails for China and Japan to-morrow noon.

Several hard showers here this afternoon. Weather clear now.

Friends of Rochefort state positively that he has left for the [illegible] house, on Stockton street. Grousette and others, his companions, are still here.

The Costa Rica will not sail for Panama till next Tuesday, and the Colima on the following day.

The U. S. steamer Shubrick and schooner Stina Nicholson collided to-day off Lime Point. The Stina was towed back by the Shubrick. Neither vessel much damaged.

Interior California.

ANAHEIM, May 21.—This morning a man named William Olsen, a teamster hauling pipes for B. Dreyfus & Co. to and from Anaheim Landing, was instantly killed by his team running away. He jumped from the wagon to catch the leaders, but made a misstep, stumbled and fell under the wheels and was crushed in a horrible manner.

COLUSA, May 22.—Rain fell here to-day—2-100 inch. It will help the grain and will not hurt the hay crop.

PRINCETON, May 22.—Rained here moderately to-day for about five hours. It is now clearing off; wind north. No harm done to grain. A large amount of hay is cut in the fields but is not injured. The yield of grain in this part of Colusa county the coming harvest will be enormous.

CALISTOGA, May 22.—Commenced showering about noon here and continued balance of the day at intervals. Cloudy, with south wind blowing.

NEVADA.

EUREKA, May 22.—The threatened war between renegade Indians and the Shoshones of this vicinity appears to have been caused by Bejamungan's brother being killed, or supposed to have been, in a drunken brawl in the vicinity of Dimond station, recently, between two Dimond Indians, one Eureka Indian and several squaws. The report reaching Bejamungan at Palisade of his relative's death he gathered some warriors, started here, made a careful estimate of the worth of his brother. After a mature deliberation it was decided that about the right thing would be $100, 20 horses and some blankets, and if not complied with they threatened to wipe the entire tribe out. The Shoshones raised $41 and half the horses, which was transferred to Beja's man. Shortly after the money was paid news arrived that Beja's brother had not been killed by the Eureka Indians, furthermore he had not been killed at all; consequently, they wanted them to transfer the coin, which the renegades refused to return. Last night Walter Tarsden, interpreter, accompanied by two officers, proceeded to the camp of the invaders and by threats and arguments induced the strangers to disgorge. The renegades struck camp before daylight this morning and went on their way homeward, entirely disgusted with their unsuccessful mission.

Weather warm and pleasant.

UTAH.

SALT LAKE, May 22.—The Supreme Court has decided to recognize M. T. Duncan, the appointee of the Governor, as Territorial Marshal, instead of McAllister, elected by the Legislature; also that Probate Courts have no right to grant divorce.

A report is in circulation that twenty three miners have been murdered on Sevier river by Navajo Indians, but the fact is not well established.

The monster sea serpent that inhabits Bear Lake has been seen again lately by a Mormon Bishop.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 22.—Thomas Schooley, who murdered Henry Forman on the 22d of January last, was hanged in the jail yard at 6 o'clock this morning. The prisoner died expressing great contrition. He did not move after the drop fell, his neck being broken. Schooley was a native of New York, but has been on this coast since 1860. He was 38 years of age.

SAD DEATH OF A CLERGYMAN.—The Ellenville (Ulster county, N. Y.) Journal tells a sad story of the death of the Rev. Stephen L. Mershon, in that village. He was engaged to be married to Miss Mary Talmage, of Napanoch, in the same county, and reached there late on Tuesday last, after having been detained a long while in a rain storm. He complained of feeling unwell, but insisted that he should be all right after a night's sleep. The next morning a physician was called to see him and found one lung badly congested and all the symptoms were threatening. At first the doctor refused to allow him to think of leaving his bed that day, but as 12 M.—the hour set for his marriage—drew near he seemed so much relieved that the physician gave a reluctant consent to his going to the church, but stipulated that the services should be as brief as possible. The bride was Miss Mary Talmage, daughter of the Rev. Dr. J. R. Talmage, of Napanoch. The only thing that marred the services was the evident suffering of the groom, whose strife for breath was seen and heard all over the church. After the ceremony Mr. Mershon went immediately to bed, while the small company of relatives and family friends partook of the quiet wedding dinner spread in the dining room of the parsonage. Dr. Lever passed the night in close attendance upon his patient, and on Thursday called in Dr. Sears, of Ellenville, in consultation, but they found little to encourage their hope. On Friday Mr. Mershon persuaded himself that he was better, and insisted upon being dressed and sitting up two hours. He passed a restless night, and on Saturday at 11 o'clock P. M. he died.

A CHILD EATEN UP BY A HOG.—A gentleman who arrived in the city this morning gives us the particulars of a horrible affair that occurred in the northwest part of Polk county on Monday evening. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon Mrs. Jane Stivers, who has a residence in the county, a number of [illegible] and [illegible] to the barn in search of some eggs, and left her baby of a few weeks old playing on the floor of the house. She was absent about twenty minutes, and on returning, was horrified at the shocking spectacle presented. The baby lay on the floor, dead, its right arm and a portion of its right breast and cheek completely eaten off, while a large hog, that had been running in the lot for some time, was still munching away at the bloody remains. The mother sprang to the rescue of her child, but too late. The brute had effectually accomplished its work.

Mr. Stivers was away from home at the time and returned in the evening, only to learn the loss he had sustained. The affair created a profound sensation in the neighborhood.—St. Jo. Commercial.

WHY WAS SUMNER DEPOSED?

A [illegible] SENATOR CAMERON [illegible] — [illegible]

In the Senate [illegible] April [illegible]

Mr. Thurman—Mr. President, when I entered this body five years ago there was no man who was more [illegible] with the Republican party in this Senate. He was a man to whom that party was more indebted for its very existence than to any other man or to [illegible] hundred or a thousand men, who [illegible] in the course of time that man, in the exercise of his right to think for himself, saw fit to differ with the Administration on a great public measure, and the result was, as we all know, that he was humiliated in every way that the Republican majority in the Senate could humiliate him; that he was thrust out of the committee at the head of which for so many years he had served and with honor to himself and benefit to the country; and that the time came when that Senator had to seek—no, not to seek, but to obtain—a place on humble committees of this body by the votes of the Democratic Senators in their caucus. Ah, Mr. President, with so signal a case before us, and with the eulogies yesterday pronounced ringing in our ears, I think it will not do for the Senator from Vermont to talk about the independence that is tolerated by the Republican party.

Mr. Cameron—I rose a few moments ago in order to make an explanation in some degree personal to myself, and I am impelled to do it by what was said by the Senator from Ohio [Mr. Thurman] in regard to the chairmanship of the Committee on Foreign Relations.

I desire to say—and I have sought for the last two years for an opportunity to say it—that I was placed in that position by no act of my own. I was placed upon the Committee on Foreign Relations at the first session when I came to the Senate after my election preceding the last, and I was then placed there at the request of the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Sumner], and I was placed next to himself, he being the chairman and I the second on the committee, serving in that position for several years. When it was determined not to place him on the committee at the beginning of a new Congress because of a difficulty between himself and the Secretary of State—for the Secretary of State said, as I understood, that he could have no official relations with the Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations because of the unwillingness of the chairman to act with him—I was absent at my home, and there heard by telegraph that it had been determined to put me at the head of the committee in place of Mr. Sumner. And it was a place to which I was entitled by all the usages of the Senate if the Chairman left his position. I left home before daylight and came here and entered the Senate Chamber for the purpose of declining to serve as chairman, simply and solely out of regard for him. As I passed through the Chamber to take my seat in the Senate a gentleman who was over zealous in behalf of the former chairman made some remarks which were, as I believed, unjust to myself, and I left the Senate, went to my committee room and refused to act in the matter, casting no vote during that protracted and to me painful struggle.

I have said by the usages of the Senate I was entitled to that place. I say also that it was important that the head of the Department of State should be in perfect unison with the chairman of that committee about the performance of its important duties, especially with reference to the treaty of Washington. I do not desire to speak of those duties. I do not think it is so very difficult a matter to be chairman of that committee or of any other, and especially will any difficulty disappear when I give you the names of the gentlemen composing the Committee on Foreign Relations. Next to the chairman is the Senator from Indiana [Mr. Morton], next to him the Senator from Maine [Mr. Hamlin], then the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. Howe], then the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. Frelinghuysen], then the Senator from New York [Mr. Conkling], then the Senator from Missouri [Mr. Schurz], and the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. Stockton], and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. McCreery]. Does anybody believe that that committee without a head at all could not perform all the duties required of it? Now why should I be assailed for having taken the place to which I was entitled and to which nobody has an exclusive right?

Mr. Thurman—I hope my friend will not think that I assailed him. I did not allude to him in the slightest degree.

Mr. Cameron—I know the Senator from Ohio has too much kindness for him to assail anybody; but within the last fifteen or twenty days I have seen it stated twenty or thirty or more times in the newspapers that I had robbed Mr. Sumner of his place on the Committee on Foreign Relations. My God, sir, I did not rob him of anything. I would rather now much rather add to his reputation than detract from it in any way. He had great merits, but he was not the saviour of his country, and especially he was not the only man in the world fitted to be the chairman of any committee of this House. So far from feeling any unkindness to me, he was the last person I spoke to on the day before he died, when I was going home to my sick family. I went to him and asked him to pair with me, and he said, "Yes, Cameron, I do it gladly," and we shook hands. He said to me "God bless you," and I said to him "God bless you." For long years he and I had been on the most pleasant personal relations. I found him here in the Senate when I came back the second time. I had been here before him, and during the years when he and I were here together and during the years of the war, when the gentlemen on the other side never said a kind word of him and many of them were glad to say unkind things of him, I always defended him, and during an occasion in this House in executive session when I was assailed he defended me, and I hope that as long as I live I shall do no wrong to any man who ever defended me when I was not present to defend myself. Mr. Sumner's [illegible] history has [illegible] recorded. Surely his reputation can receive no aid from injudicious friends, [illegible] from his life-long political enemies.

Mr. Thurman—I have but a word to say.

Mr. Hamlin—Will the Senator give me one minute?

Mr. Thurman—Yes, sir.

Mr. Hamlin—In this connection, inasmuch as the matter has been alluded to as to the Committee on Foreign Relations, I think it appropriate that I should state that at the time the Senator from Pennsylvania was placed at the head of that committee it was done simply and only because it was understood that Mr. Sumner at that time was not on speaking terms with either the Secretary of State or the President of the United States, and therefore no the proper [illegible] through which [illegible] this Body. That [illegible].

Mr. Thurman—Mr. President, why Charles Sumner was [illegible] with the President of the United States and [illegible] with the Secretary of the State I have to [illegible] now [illegible] is not my purpose to tell. I do not undertake [illegible] what is the truth [illegible] but the [illegible] in the history of the country [illegible] long after we have passed away. Charles Sumner's own [illegible] why he was not [illegible] terms with the Secretary of the State [illegible] I am willing to leave [illegible]. But [illegible] that [illegible] the Republican party for [illegible] was developed in open Senate. The Senators must remember that the [illegible] was not [illegible] the Republican party, but that the [illegible] of Mr. Sumner [illegible] the United States took the [illegible] of the Senate [illegible] upon the [illegible] and that [illegible] place in open Senate, which gave [illegible] the opposition some little [illegible] to the [illegible] of that caucus.

But, Mr. President, I do not wish to do injustice to any one. All I know is [illegible] I think I know it, that Mr. Sumner believed to the day of his death that he was proscribed [illegible] he would not support a particular measure of the Administration. He may have been in error [illegible] whether he was [illegible] but I think [illegible] truth that ever found [illegible] the [illegible] he was right but I think the country [illegible]. I think the universal [illegible] time that [illegible] I know who knew anything at all about it ever attributed his displacement to any [illegible] wish [illegible] or the Senator from Pennsylvania. I have [illegible] myself that before the [illegible] the Senator from Pennsylvania expressed to me in private [illegible] was to be relieved from the place to which he had been appointed.

THE TERRITORIES

[illegible] has been appointed Auditor of [illegible] county, W. T., [illegible].

Proposals [illegible] building [illegible] Court House in Pierce county, W. T.

[illegible] the biggest bill King county, W. T., has to pay is the quarterly drain on the treasury for the care of pauper.

The assessment list of Thurston county, W. T., has been returned to the Commissioners and foots up [illegible] Brothers at Tacoma have transferred their two stores to their creditors and have been released from further claims.

The lower town of Tacoma has been given a charter of incorporation by the Commissioners, and an election for municipal officers ordered held on the second Monday in June.

An annual meeting of the Christian Church will be held on Yelm Prairie, Thurston county, W. T., at the railroad station, beginning Friday, July 1, 1874. Elder Bahl, of Oregon, will be present.

The Secretary of War and Generals Sherman and Sheridan are strongly in favor of the construction by Government of the proposed telegraph line from Tucson, Arizona, to Santa Fe, New Mexico.

We believe it to be Gov. McCormick who said many years ago that the Apache Indians [illegible] we presume warriors, numbered about 1,000. Now since the time at which this wild statement was made, nearly 1,000 Apache warriors must have died, [illegible] and the bulk of the reservations are crowded with women and old warriors at several bands of them are at large in the mountains.

The Tacoma [illegible] says: In the Auditor's office at Steilacoom two plats of additions to the city of Tacoma have been filed at that place this week. One called South Tacoma, filed by John J. Bingham, is on section 28, township 20 N. R. [illegible]; the other is Stacy's addition, same township and range. Both are some distance off, even on paper, by the time one finds them after threading his way through the timber they seem a good deal farther.

At the last session of the Commissioners for Pacific county, W. T., the rate of county tax for the year 1874 was fixed at [illegible] mills for county tax, 4 mills for school tax, 4 mills for territorial tax and a poll tax of $2, and a property road tax of 2 mills on the dollar assessed valuation, and a poll road tax of $4. The price of retail liquor license on and after May 4th in the county was fixed at $300 per year, and the price of wholesale liquor license at $100 per year.

The Idaho Statesman of May 16th says: The people in this section of the Territory are evidently turning their attention more and more to agricultural matters, as a visit to the Land Office in this city will clearly show. Many entries of public lands under the Homestead, Pre-emption and Timber laws have been made this spring, and yesterday three entries were made of quarter sections by as many different persons. Whether the Grange movement has anything to do with this activity or not we are not prepared to say.

From the Olympia Courier we make the following extract of proceedings of the Board of commissioners of Thurston county, W. T. They fixed the county tax at 6 mills on the dollar—an increase of 2 mills over last year. The road tax was fixed at 2 mills, being a reduction of 1 mill on the dollar. The request that block 18 in Swantown be exempt from taxation as it was intended for school purposes was refused. The Washington Standard, J. M. Murphy, proprietor, was awarded the county printing for the current year, he having put in the only bid. The rates fixed are $1 50 per square of nonpareil type for first insertion and 75 cents each subsequent time. The question of reducing the assessment upon the track of the North Pacific railroad, as made by the Sheriff, was brought up, and said assessment was reduced from $10,000 per mile to $5,000 per mile.

LEDOCHOWSKI AND THE ECCLESIASTICAL COURT

The telegraph announces that the Ecclesiastical Court of Berlin has pronounced the dismissal of Archbishop Ledochowski.

The indictment against him was divided into six classes of infractions by that prelate of the laws of May 1873. The first relates to the employment of the Polish language for religious instruction in the college of Posen. The Government having invited the Professors of that branch of education to give their lessons in German, with the reserve of certain exceptions specified in the ministerial decision, the Archbishop ordered them to take no notice of that injunction, and as most of the teachers obeyed him, they were nearly all discharged.

The offences of the second division relate to the publication of the resolutions of the Fulda Episcopal Conference.

Those of the third concern violation of the law of May 11, 1873, in the nomination of ecclesiastics. The charge enumerates five appointments by that prelate without the assent of the Government; the prosecutions instituted against him on that head resulted in his condemnation to a series of fines, the total of which amounts to about 4,800 thalers, and for which has been substituted in consequence of the refusal of the Archbishop to pay, an imprisonment of two years, which the condemned is at this moment undergoing at Ostrowo.

The fourth group of offences mentioned in the indictment bears on the refusal of Mgr. Ledochowski to name definitive occupants to different cures long [illegible].

The [illegible] is the fifth, the excommunication pronounced against the [illegible] the [illegible] professors of religious instruction that submitted to the prescription of the Government and not to the order of his ecclesiastical superior.

The last charge will relate to the refusal of the Archbishop to [illegible] to the function [illegible] he had been invited to do by the Superior President [illegible] letter of November [illegible] in conformity with Article 24 of the law of May 1873. In the answer Mgr. L. [illegible] that [illegible] that he was not at all [illegible] Polish [illegible].

[illegible] the different offences [illegible] of the Archbishop [illegible] the [illegible] the law [illegible] of the [illegible] it is known that [illegible] proceeding from Ostrowo to Berlin [illegible] the [illegible] the authority of the law [illegible] interpret [illegible] views [illegible] revolutionary and [illegible] of all order. Even in the [illegible] individual such thought would be dangerous, but how much more so when put forth by an Archbishop. The speaker [illegible] on the [illegible] of Monseigneur Ledochowski and the court, after deliberating for three quarters of an hour, adhered to that recommendation.

Both the flouring mills at Albany have closed down for lack of wheat.

OREGON

Salem [illegible] the new fire bell sounds like it was cracked.

The ground [illegible] so dry that farmers have abandoned the work of summer fallowing.

The final examination of the Albany Collegiate Institute will take place next week, beginning on Thursday.

Geo. Marshall, of Junction City, and Chas. Goodchild, of Eugene, have purchased the woolen factory at Ashland.

A $200 Angora goat belonging to Jacob Wirecurver, of McMinnville, is now no better than a common billy. It died last week.

One hundred and twenty shares in the Astoria Farmers Company are advertised in the [illegible] for sale for delinquent assessments.

The Albany Democrat says there is connected with the death of Perry Herren at Salem a dark chapter that has not yet come to light and probably never will.

The Herald learns that the Oregon Military Road Company disposed of their road and lands to the Prime Land Company of California the first of the week. The amount paid was $120,000, as we learn, $40,000 being paid down.

The W. W. Mfg. Co. the following officers were elected: Directors, John F. Miller, of Salem, Edwin Russell and W. S. Ladd, of Portland; President of the Board and Managing Agent, John F. Miller; Secretary, Samuel R. Irwin.

The Granges of Peoria, Shedd and Orleans have made the necessary arrangements for having a grand union picnic on next Thursday at a grove about a half mile southeast of Willamette Church, in Orleans precinct. Grangers, farmers and all who take an interest in such matters are invited to attend.

D. K. Warren, nominated for Joint Senator in Clatsop and Tillamook counties on the Independent ticket, declines. T. P. Powers, nominated for Assessor in Clatsop county on the Democratic ticket, also declines. C. J. Parker also declines the nomination for Treasurer tendered him by the Independents of Clatsop county.

Here's [illegible] for you. The Forest Grove Independent says: Seven scholars from the [illegible] district's [illegible] this place played the truant Friday afternoon for the purpose of holding a bellicose meeting to show their muscle. Bloody noses and dirty shirts was the result. Another mill was arranged to come off on Monday, but failed.

Information is wanted of the whereabouts of Newel C. Hulen, who left Monroe county, Mo., about the 15th of last March under peculiar circumstances, and it is supposed he is some place in Oregon. Wallis H. Fountain, of Sturgeon, county, Mo., will liberally reward any person who will send him any information on the subject.

The ladies of Oregon City gave an entertainment in Pope's Hall last Thursday evening for the benefit of Mrs. T. J. West. The attendance was quite large and the entertainment gave general satisfaction. The receipts netted $107 25, which is certainly very good. The ladies who got up the entertainment are deserving of the highest praise.

The Grange of McMinnville is making arrangements for a grand Fourth of July celebration and a picnic to be held on the camp-meeting grounds one mile and a half north of the town. An invitation is extended to all Granges of Yamhill and adjoining counties and in fact everybody is invited to attend, and make this celebration a grand affair.

Last week, in Cornelius, one of Mr. A. J. Spencer's small girls went into the bedroom to dress for an entertainment in that town and set fire with the candle, which she was carrying, to the clothing in the apartment. The fire spread rapidly and soon enveloped the room in flames. The alarm was given, and the citizens rushed in, and the fire was, with great difficulty, got under control and extinguished. Loss estimated at $50.

Kinney & Co., of Salem Mills, are contracting for the erection of a large warehouse sixty five feet west of the mill building, to be 60x100 feet ground plan and two stories high. It will be sixteen feet in the lower story and ten feet in the upper, and will be built in the most substantial manner for use as a wheat warehouse to hold [illegible]000 tons. The present warehouse holds 2,000 tons, and does not nearly afford enough storage for the mill in the busy season.

The Albany Democrat says: On last Tuesday the annual meeting of the stockholders in the farmers warehouse was held at the Court House. The Directors elected for the ensuing year were G. F. Crawford, A. Wheeldon, G. T. Simpson, G. W. Vernon, T. Froman, John Huston and M. H. Wilds. With the exception of Messrs. Froman and Huston the gentlemen elected were members of the old Board. The report of the financial agent of the company makes a very satisfactory showing.

The Hillsboro Park Association have filed articles of incorporation and received charter under the above named title. W. Simmons donated the company one block of land for a public park, situated north of the town. $300 have already been subscribed and it is thought that the whole stock will soon be taken. The work of clearing is going on rapidly, and in a short time Hillsboro will have a public park that will be an ornament to the city, as well as a place for pleasure parties and the recreation of her citizens.

The Yamhill Reporter learns that a young man whose name was understood to be Pierce shot himself dead a few evenings ago on the premises of Mr. Hanger, in Last Chehalem precinct. The young man went to bed on that evening, but subsequently got up and left the house. He did not come back that night, and the next morning he was found in a cabin where he sometimes staid sitting in a chair dead, with a bullet hole through his head. A pistol was lying on his knee with which it is likely he took his life.

A SLIGHT UNPLEASANTNESS IN THE HOUSE

Mr. Garfield at half past 2, moved an adjournment. There appeared to be a large majority in favor of the motion. The yeas and nays were ordered, and the Speaker intimated to Mr. Garfield that the latter would not have been recognized if he had understood that he intended to move an adjournment, as the Speaker had told him (Garfield) that he had promised to recognize Mr. Orr, who desired to have a bill passed.

Mr. Garfield defended himself from an imputation of bad faith in making the motion, which he thereupon withdrew.

Mr. Potter objected to the Speaker telling any member, particularly the Chairman of an important committee, that he had no right to submit a motion to adjourn.

The Speaker replied that he stood by his remark, the gentleman from New York to the contrary notwithstanding.

Mr. Garfield said he did not permit any man in the House, not even the Speaker, to question his good faith.

The Speaker said he had not questioned Mr. Garfield's good faith, and would not permit his own good faith to be questioned by the gentleman from New York (Potter).

Mr. Potter—The gentleman from New York has not questioned the Speaker's good faith.

The Speaker—The gentleman from New York assumed the right to criticise the conduct of the Chair.

Mr. Potter—I questioned the authority of the Speaker to say to any member of the House that he should not move an adjournment.

The Speaker—The gentleman from New York had no issue with the Chair. The gentleman from Ohio (Garfield) was perfectly competent to take care of himself, but the gentleman from New York thrust himself into the question in order to criticise the conduct of the Chair.

Mr. Potter—I criticised the remark of the Speaker.

The Speaker—And the Chair repeats the remark.

Mr. Potter—The Chair may repeat it, but the gentleman from New York objects. It is the right of any member to move to adjourn.

The Speaker—Did not the Chair admit the motion?

Mr. Potter—But the Chair criticised the conduct of the member who submitted it. I have never before known a chairman in admitting a motion to criticise it.

The Speaker—The Chair considers that he was entirely vindicated in his remark and that it was not the judgment of the House that this was the proper time to adjourn.

Mr. Garfield—I thought that the judgment of the House was the other way.

Mr. Potter—I thought the House showed that it was in favor of adjournment.

The Speaker—Does the gentleman from New York renew the motion to adjourn?

Mr. Garfield—I withdrew the motion in the hope that we might soon get at one of the Appropriation bills.

The Speaker—No one who is not in the chair can realize the pressure of business on Mondays. The gentleman from Iowa (Orr) stated to the Chair that he represented the wishes of a whole region of Western States in a bill which he wished to have a vote upon. If the Chair were on Monday to give preference to the business of the Appropriation Committee there would be no opportunity to have the recognized gentlemen who have important business and which they cannot get before the House in any other way than by motions to suspend the rules. No person can be placed in a more trying position than the Chair is on Monday. A gentleman who has a bill to present does not see any of the other 290 members, but the Chair has to see them all, and has to apportion the public business so that every section, every State, every member shall have a fair hearing.

The subject was here dropped.

BELGIUM AND THE ABOLITION OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.—Forty years ago, says the Manchester Examiner, for a period of five years, 1830 to 1834 inclusive, capital punishment was practically, although not by statute, abolished in Belgium, and no execution took place during that time. But in the next five years, ending 1839, four executions were permitted to take place. But so far from this proving a means of increasing public security, it was found that the number of murders had increased nearly fifty per cent in the second period as compared with the first. Since this experiment Belgium has almost entirely relinquished the infliction of capital punishment, and it appears with continued good success. A letter received a few weeks ago from M. Visschers, a member of the Belgian Government, addressed to Mr. Tallack, the Secretary of the Howard Association, London, remarks: "The commission of grave crimes is everywhere diminishing in Belgium, and it is a noteworthy circumstance that for nearly eleven years no execution has taken place in this country."

REVEREND MR GEARY'S PASTORAL LETTERS ON POLITICS

Observe our letter from Lebanon in another column What the writer says about the encyclical epistle of the Reverend Mr Geary had been told to us substantially as stated in the letter by a prominent gentleman of Albany not two hours before this correspondence reached our desk It appears Mr Geary considers himself called upon to make a personal appeal in behalf of the Ring and does not hesitate to counsel such Independents as he thinks he may be able to influence to act in bad faith and go into the business of trading and swapping votes which forms one of the worst features of partisan politics

The Reverend gentleman has certainly the legal right to take just the course he is taking, if he likes and we do not feel called upon to criticise the taste of his assumption of power to lead by the nose intelligent Independent Republicans who were Republicans when he was holding fat offices by the favor of the extremest Democratic Administration that this country ever knew and in acknowledgment therefor higgling at no requirement that might [illegible] party fealty There ought and we are quite satisfied with Mr Geary's course, on the point of propriety, if he is It remains to be seen—if it is not already being seen—how this piece of arrogance will set on the stomachs of the Republicans who are thus told by necessary implication that they have not sense enough to know their own business and need some private instruction from a chronic politician who has always proved a failure We opine the sequel will prove that Mr. Geary has got a rebellious generation to deal with this time as he had when he tried tried to write up the Hipple candidate last fall, and that they will turn a deaf ear to his pastoral admonitions.

Nor have we any desire to discuss the question suggested by our correspondent as to whether the cause of Mr Geary's dissatisfaction is that he himself was not nominated by the Independents Our correspondent says that is the explanation generally accepted in Linn county, and as the people of that section know Mr Geary better than those of any other section, it is by no means a violent presumption that they are best qualified to judge of the motives that actuate him But they may be mistaken for all that No one can say with absolute certainty that he knows the mainsprings of another's action, and Mr Geary's Linn county neighbors, it may be, are judging him with too much severity Indeed he may be prompted to oppose the election of Mr Campbell by a feeling, not unnatural, that since he himself has always sought in vain for political honors since he left the Democratic party about the close of the war, he would prefer that all other ministers, who take part in politics, should share the same fate Or it may be that he is actuated simply and solely by love of the old Republican organization, for which he has the zeal of a new member Any one of these explanations may be the true one, or they may be all true in part But it is certain that, by this ill-advised course, Mr Geary will only weaken the hold he has upon the confidence of many people, without accomplishing anything in the election We say with a kindness he will some day appreciate, and with a sincerity to which he will give full credit hereafter, when this campaign is over, that it were better for Mr Geary, and quite as well for the cause he professes to be interested in for him either to enter into the contest in that fair and open way which is above criticism, or to keep out of it

Of course every intelligent person who is not blinded by partisan prejudice, knows that the contest is between L F Grover, the Democratic, and T F Campbell, the Independent candidate for Governor Tolman has no possible chance of election He will be the hindmost man in the race, by more votes than any man will be the foremost The only way to beat Grover is to elect Campbell, for Tolman is practically out of the race, and for exactly the same reason, the only way to defeat Campbell is to elect Grover If Mr Geary does really and sincerely desire to defeat Grover, and if he thinks he can influence any votes, he should be throwing all his influence in favor of Mr Campbell

THE "LAST DITCH" OF THE RAILWAY STRUGGLE

The Sacramento Union publishes in full the opinions of Evarts and Curtis in favor of the superiority of the railway companies to the laws of the country and comments upon them in exactly this right way It says There is not a thought or word in them that was not bought and paid for at a high price by the St Paul and Milwaukee and the Chicago and Northwestern companies The railway magnates went to these two lawyers and said We are in jeopardy The Legislature has passed a law that will prohibit us from extorting some millions from the people of Wisconsin The people are a unit in favor of the Legislature and against us We do not like to lose these millions of our profits We prefer to spend a few hundreds of thousands at law Gentlemen attorneys you know all the crooks and twists and turns the law and the courts can take We will give you, to begin with a very large retainer and a much larger fee contingent on your winning the case and beating this act of the Legislature of Wisconsin and the unanimous will of the people of that State The two lawyers of course took the retainers and in their opinions present the basis of their plan to beat the people and the Legislatures Their plan of campaign is something like this They assert that the act violates the Constitution of Wisconsin They will go into the Wisconsin courts and test that question If the courts sustain the Act then they also claim that it violates the Constitution of the United States, and beaten in the State courts they will take their case into the Federal ones In the meantime the road will keep on under the company's rates and they will be able to continue their extortions for some years longer.

The idea is this that whenever Congress or a State Legislature presumes to regulate the fares and freights of a railway company, the company will set up with all the plausibility they can that the rates so fixed by the law are ruinously low, and amount to a virtual confiscation of their property As they have most of the lawyers retained if they can manage to secure the courts also they will then be in a position to defy all legislation, and leave the people at their mercy, at least until the character of the courts can be changed So far as the States are concerned, it will not be difficult to get rid of the railroad-ized—and in some cases probably subsidized Judges—as they are elective and not for a long term of years But changes in the Federal courts will come about more slowly, because the Federal Judges hold for life Nevertheless, when the contest shall have reached this advanced stage, the remedy is still in the hands of the people who will know how to use it as the oligarchy will find out

HEROIC TREATMENT FOR HAZING

In the Chicago Tribune we find a statement of the unpleasantness between the Faculty of Ann Arbor University (Mich) and certain refractory students which recently led to the [illegible] seven of the most troublesome Sophomore were suspended for the scandalous practice of hazing We have already expressed our opinion of this rowdyish custom, but we heartily endorse this pointed opinion by the Tribune

Of the character of this practice there is no doubt It is an ungentlemanly, low-bred cowardly and sometimes brutal sport indulged in usually at the expense of the weaker class and those who are too timorous to resent the insolent outrage

The suspension of the six was met by their classmates with the most extravagant outbursts of ruffianism and riot One hundred and ten students, Sophomore and Freshmen sent to the Faculty certain documents, calling the attention of the Faculty to the fact that they had been engaged in hazing Here are copies of the papers

To the Faculty of the University of Michigan

WHEREAS Some of our classmates have recently been suspended from the University for the offense of hazing, and

WHEREAS, The undersigned desire that justice shall be done to all

THEREFORE We respectfully request the attention of the Faculty of the University to the fact that we also have been engaged in hazing.

[FRESHMAN PAPER]

To the Faculty of Michigan University

GENTLEMEN We the undersigned, members of the Freshman class wish respectfully to inform you that in the affair for which three of our number have been suspended, we are equally implicated with them and protest against the injustice of suspending three of us only

The Faculty were not intimidated On the contrary they gave the young scamps one week's time in which to withdraw their names On second thought twenty nine students recanted the remaining eighty-one were suspended The Juniors and Seniors have taken offense at the wholesome assertion of authority but they have thus far confined their wrath to a declaration of opinion Ann Arbor University has taken a long step toward the introduction of a much-needed reform It has done what Harvard Yale and all the older colleges have been too cowardly to attempt it has applied the heroic remedy to hazing

Police Judge Denny has been writing private letters—caught the contagion from Mr Geary—to various individuals up the valley, exhorting them to come back from their wanderings and worship the ring It is not stated in these letters as we are informed that the writer of them was the largest contributor to the corruption fund which the ring raised for the last city election in Portland In order that this circumstance which would doubtless add very considerably to the weight of this Police Judge's personal influence we repeat the statement of the amount contributed by him He contributed to that corruption fund $500 O N Denny gave $500 to a corruption fund raised by the ring to carry the last city election in their interests That is a charge he dare not deny

Somehow or other the Bulletin has let up on the discussion of the property qualifications for office since we exhibited the delinquencies of some of the ring candidates and the worse than delinquencies of others—ain't it?

Ex Governor A C Gibbs W H Effinger, Esq , and other prominent speakers who favor the election of the People's District and county tickets will address the people this evening at Masonic Hall

The dispatches show that somebody is soon to be swindled out of a few hundred thousand dollars on Central Pacific bonds

GENERAL NOTES

A correspondent of the Boston Journal proposes butteroid, or buttoid, as a shorter and better name than oleomargarine

Phebe Couzins doesn't dress like her brothers of the bar. She wears a heavy silk with a polonnaise richly trimmed with black lace roses in her bosom white frills around her neck and sparkling aigrette in her hair

St Paul seems to have held cremation among the higher Christian virtues as witness "And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor and though I give my body to be burned and have not charity it profiteth me nothing."—I Corinthians [illegible]

A ragged forlorn looking urchin entered a store in New Orleans the other day and addressing the merchant piteously asked "A nickel to get my mother a loaf of bread please sir" A jovial neighbor also a merchant with a sly twinkle in his eye produced a nickel and said, "My son this nickel I worked for now what will you do for it " Quick as thought the boy went down into his clothes and producing a nickel exclaimed "I'll match you sir"

GERMAN BIRDS FOR OHIO —The Germans of Cincinnati are making efforts to introduce into the State of Ohio the song birds of their native land A few days since 1 300 birds of different varieties arrived from Germany and were set free near the city They immediately began work building their nests Among them are the nightingale the skylark and the black bird of Germany A few birds imported and set free the year previous are returning after the winter and it is hoped that those set free this year will do likewise Meanwhile the English sparrows imported into New York a few years since to protect the trees of Central Park from the ravages of insects are making their benevolent way all over the country —Chicago Tribune

ATROCITIES IN A POOR HOUSE —MILWAUKEE May 10 —Much excitement was caused today by the statement that two men had met violent deaths in the Insane Department of the Poor house and that no inquests or inquiry had been held The facts came out by an eye witness confessing to a priest who refused absolution unless he communicated with the authorities The matter is now in the hands of the Supervisor One of the men is alleged to have been beaten to death [illegible] the other was strapped tight whilst in delirium tremens and left alone all night being dead when cut down in the morning

HON E R GEARY'S AND REV O N DENNY'S ENCYCLICAL LETTERS

LEBANON May 20 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Rev E R Geary has been sending private letters to prominent Independent Republicans of this county and to every nominee on the Independent ticket who has been a Republican heretofore urging upon them the dire necessity of Independents supporting Tolman for Governor instead of T F Campbell for the purpose of defeating, as they say, Grover His pretended reasons are that Campbell will not carry more than 300 votes in this county and that Tolman will have 800 or 1 000 votes and that by thus acting [illegible] Grover can be defeated but that if Independents vote for Mr Campbell Grover's election in this county will be sure

Now Mr Editor the facts of the case make it apparent that the Rev Geary [illegible] that Mr Campbell will carry Linn county from 200 to 300 votes more than Mr Grover and as for Tolman he will not be supported outside of a little ring in Albany with a sufficiency of votes to form a corporal's guard Mr Geary is working for the defeat of Mr Campbell and the election of Mr Grover for before the Portland ring will allow (if in their power to prevent) that Campbell shall be elected they will work for Grover's election Even now the Rev is perambulating the county and using the Livery of Heaven to serve the devil in by electioneering with Independents to change off But I am happy to inform you that he is nonplussed at most every effort he has thus made in the county This scheme of the Rev gentleman meets with the hearty condemnation of all good sensible men in his church as well as out of it In a letter addressed to a prominent Independent Republican here he says that the Independents should have asked the advice and counsel of the main leaders of the Republican [illegible] nominations [illegible] generally to mean that if the Independents had nominated Rev E R Geary for a position his influence would have been with the Independents His proselyting will be but small in Linn for the people see very clearly that this extra effort on the part of the Ring means no good but deception and destruction to the Independent cause

Hon O N Denny Police Judge of Portland has also been sending epistles to the same effect to Independents of this county but their efforts in blackmailing our cause will prove in vain The handwriting, sealing their doom is plainly written on the wall

OLD LINN

Put the System in Fighting Tune.

The great object in cases of indigestion and its accompanying derangements of the liver bowels and nerves is to put the stomach in a condition to dissolve readily and without pain the food submitted to its action This is accomplished and much more than this by the daily use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters A dose should be taken before every meal The good effects will soon be apparent. The loss of flesh strength and energy which usually occurs in dyspepsia will be arrested The determination of bile to the skin will cease and that cathartic fluid will pass into the bowels and assist in keeping them free Every organ connected with or dependent upon the stomach will be toned and renovated The kidneys the sifters of the system will be beneficially influenced as well as the liver the alimentary canal and the pores In short the whole organization will be put in the fighting trim necessary to resist and expel disease If the medicine is taken regularly and persistently this result will inevitably follow

DEASE CREEK MINES —From a letter written at Dease creek April 28th by John Meacham, to Mr Horr of Olympia, and published in the Courier we take the following Mr Meacham says "We arrived here safe and sound about the last of March and have had from that time to the present to look around and form some idea of the country Dease creek is a canyon from the mouth up as far as I have been, and is a very hard stream to manage and the diggings are not as rich as they were represented, although there are some very good ones on both Dease and Thiberts but everything that will pay and more too is taken up and men are leaving every day on their way out. There was a small excitement a few days ago about a small creek eight miles below but the men who went have about all come out, discouraged with the prospect The ground is still frozen Flour is $1 per pound, bacon $1 50, sugar, $1 25 tea $3 and everything in proportion There would be nothing done here if it were not for the men who are buying out and selling their 'grub' We have claims that are about on an average with the rest of the creek, and we think we will make something out of them but we cannot work them to advantage until after high water when we will have about two months to work.

GRADING WOOL.—Messrs Douglass & Seymour have leased the old wooden building which stands just north of the Clarendon Hotel for the purpose of converting it into a wool assorting and grading establishment. The building was formerly used as a sash and door factory and owned by Messrs Carson & [illegible] New floors have been laid in both stories, and the somewhat dilapidated condition of the building otherwise repaired The purpose of the new firm is to grade and assort all kinds of wool, whether belonging to merchants, farmers or speculators, at certain stated prices. This will give the owner of the wool a decided advantage and also the purchaser inasmuch as the coarser and finer grades of the fleece will be separated and the prices regulated according to the grade. The sorting will be in readiness to commence operations in about ten days When ready, a number of experienced and skillful wool sorters will be employed A large press—worked by horse power—will be shipped on the steamer to-day, which will be used in pressing and baling the various grades of wool.

TEMPERANCE MEETING —Last evening the meeting at the Taylor street M E Church, under the management of the ladies of the Temperance League was largely attended, and the occasion proved both profitable and pleasing to all who were present. The deep interest awakened weeks ago has not abated in the least among the zealous advocates of the temperance movement Stirring addresses were made by a number of ladies and strong appeals presented for aid, encouragement and to swell the ranks of the crusaders. [illegible] ladies came forward when an opportunity was presented, and volunteered their services A collection was taken up by the [illegible] resulting in the sum of $116 being [illegible] Revs. G W Izer and Wm. Roberts addressed the large audience, during which they [illegible] in the severest manner the conduct of the defendant's attorney in the case of the State vs Walter Moffett, tried yesterday before Justice Crich, and also of the character of the jury summoned to decide the case, and of their [illegible]

[illegible] —At the hour designated yesterday the case of State vs. Walter Moffett charged with having committed an assault on the person of Mrs. W B Fain, came up for trial before Justice Crich Jurors, who were [illegible] to try the case were after some [illegible] empanneled, and the examination began [illegible] witnesses were examined, after the case was submitted. After a brief [illegible] the jury rendered a verdict of [illegible] and also recommended that inasmuch as the case was one of malicious prosecution the costs of the suit be taxed against the prosecuting witness Mr Moffett was discharged after announcing the verdict. [illegible] E A Cronin appeared for Moffett. The state was represented by District [illegible] Durham.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC — [illegible] the children of this [illegible] with their friends, will have [illegible] on Ross Island, a few miles [illegible] The Island is in fine condition [illegible] woods and play grounds, and [illegible] to be quantities of wild straw[illegible] committee have provided, and [illegible] arranged barge which will [illegible] four hundred, if necessary [illegible] leave the foot of Taylor street at 9 o'clock A small charge is [illegible] adults and children are conveyed As the committee have had to depend on the papers to convey notice to the [illegible] the teachers and friends will inform as many as possible of the arrangement above To all who may attend there is [illegible] a pleasant occasion.

[illegible] LITERARY CONTEST —This evening the [illegible] of literary contest between the [illegible] Society of Portland and the [illegible] Salem, will take place in the Chapel of the Wallamet University The question to be [illegible] is as follows "Resolved That [illegible] of a compulsory education law [illegible] States would be injurious to the [illegible] The following is the programme [illegible] Music declamation (Philo[illegible]) H Breeden essay (Alka), T A [illegible] declamation (Alka) Ed C [illegible] essay (Philomathean) W R Struble [illegible]—affirmative, Philomatheans, [illegible] Alkas Those on the affirmative are [illegible], D W Taylor and W S. COMMITTED SUICIDE.

MR J M FRYER COMMITS SUICIDE BY CUTTING HIS THROAT

A brief account was published on Wednesday morning of the sudden death of Mr J M Fryer for many years a merchant of Portland and an estimable and highly respected citizen At the time we were in possession of no particulars relating to the death of Mr Fryer He was in Portland on the first of the present week in comparatively good health and very naturally the intelligence of his sudden death fell like a shock on the community The character of the disease which destroyed his life was not known and the community was left to conjecture the cause which had thus summarily removed him to that mysterious bourne Vague rumors however were circulated on Thursday and also yesterday, to the effect that Mr Fryer had destroyed his own life by cutting his throat Diligent inquiry elicited nothing satisfactory We were left in doubt as to the affair until the exchanges from the vicinity where Mr Fryer died were received The Forest Grove Independent has the following account of the melancholy event

Mr J M Fryer, a merchant doing business in the upper part of the city of [illegible] of Yamhill county committed suicide at his former home yesterday morning about 9 o clock by cutting his throat He had came out from the city on the evening train to visit his brother who lives and does business at Fryer's old store in North Yamhill, and near the line of the railroad During the night he got up several times and went out and appeared very restless and his brother finally locked the door, fearing that he would go out and get lost In the morning a boy was put in the store to watch him, but he sent the boy out to see to his horse and while the boy was gone he took a common pocket knife out of the show case and put it into his pocket About 9 o clock he asked his brother to take a walk with him and they started out and were passing through a grove when he stepped to one side his brother unsuspecting [illegible] passing on but had gone but a few steps when he looked around and saw the deceased kneel down and as quick as thought draw the small blade of the knife across his throat severing the windpipe but not cutting either of the large arteries He died in a few moments of time. It is supposed that trouble about his business caused the rash act He was burned out in the Portland fire last year but he and his partner have been building a large brick storehouse and it is supposed that he was in good circumstances He leaves a wife and five small children and many friends to mourn his untimely fate He had many friends and acquaintances in this county and was always known to be a generous whole hearted man His wife received a telegram at Portland informing her of his death, and she went up on the train yesterday evening We are indebted to Mrs Fields for the particulars of this sad news

PICNICS.

The weather clerk vouchsafed most delightful weather for the excursion yesterday Agreeable to announcement, the church bell was rung and then began the preparations which were hastily completed The Sunday school children met in the basement of the Methodist church and soon the march to the Stark street ferry was taken up Several trips were made each time the boat carrying quite a number of young and old folks. Shortly after 8 o clock the excursion train consisting of six coaches and a number of box cars, came up to the L street crossing having then on board many persons who had crossed the lower ferry The cars were quickly filled and the signal being given, the pleasure-seeking excursionists were speeding on their way, in the wake of the regular train, Aurorawards Shortly after 10 o clock the train arrived at its destination The cars were rapidly vacated and the party proceeded to the grove Crowning the Queen of May (Miss Gemma Frankie) was the leading feature of the day; and proved to be quite an attractive picture This consisted of singing and reading, and was very pleasing The little ones exhibiting a desire to lunch fond papas and mammas began to spread the contents of their baskets over the green sward Those who were not provided in this way repaired to the famous Aurora Hotel in fact many went on the excursion for the sole purpose of testing the qualities of the provender set out by the Germans at this widely known house It is needless to say that those who dined there yesterday wish to dine there again We have yet to see the person who has found fault with the cooking of the Aurorans During the afternoon the little ones as well as the adults participated in various innocent games Some took occasion to stroll through the park and every one speaks in the highest terms of its beautiful surroundings At about 4 o clock the cars were in readiness for the return trip They were soon filled and now the seekers for a quiet day's pleasure were traveling rapidly homeward All along the line the excursionists were greeted with demonstrative shouts and waving of handkerchiefs The little folks particularly were highly delighted with what they saw and heard and regretted the arrival of the train opposite the city where they reluctantly debarked, and after a brief walk took passage on the ferry to this side We have seldom seen a happier crowd than those who stepped off the ferry last evening

A FITTING AND DESERVED TESTIMONIAL

Last evening the members of the Grand Lodge and also the members of Orient Lodge of East Portland paid by special invitation a fraternal visit to Hassalo While all were assembled and when the proper order of business was reached Past Grand Joseph [illegible] of Orient Lodge advanced to where Mr A J Marshall the retiring Grand Master was sitting and presented him with an elegant Past Grand Master's jewel At the same time Mr Joseph made the following [illegible]

"[illegible] I beg leave to crave your indulgence for a few moments whilst I address a few words to our worthy retiring Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Oregon

W P G M Marshall Upon this exceedingly pleasant and appropriate occasion I have been I think I must say [illegible] chosen to address to you on behalf of the members of Orient Lodge No 17 of East Portland a few words of gratitude for the many kindly and fraternal acts shown to them in the past and to signify to you their just appreciation of you my Brother as a man and as an Odd Fellow I do not appear on this floor to night however to take up valuable time in any wordy enumeration of the many acts of brotherly love and fostering care which have been manifested toward Orient by you Richly as they deserve specific notice, words of mine cannot express the fraternal feelings which the heart of each member of Orient bears toward you for their exhibition I have been delegated to make to you a more substantial offering of regard and esteem than thanks or expression of gratitude The members of Orient desire you to accept from them this P G M's jewel as a slight token of the feelings which they one and all bear toward you in their hearts It may, though its value may be [illegible] still I feel assured be valued by you (not for its intrinsic worth but as an insignia of high rank in the Order and as the heartfelt offering of true Odd Fellows made upon the altar of Friendship and Fraternal love During the past year you have served as Grand Master of this jurisdiction and have acquitted yourself in a manner worthy of the high trust imposed upon you Under your administration the Order has prospered and I feel assured that every Odd Fellow will say upon your retirement 'well done thou good and faithful servant.' We feel confident you will continue to exercise toward all men those fraternal acts which have characterized your career as an Odd Fellow in the past As the rays of the sun here represented revivify and impart new life to the tender almost perishing plant with which they come in contact so may the acts which emanate from your heart afford new life and comfort to the suffering and distressed whom you may meet in your daily walk through life and that when in the Grand Lodge above you shall be arraigned before the great Tribunal it may be said of you 'Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of one of these my brethren ye did it unto me'"

Mr Marshall was so completely taken by surprise that he scarcely knew what to say Several times he essayed to speak but deep emotions choked his utterance He soon gained his self possession and accepted the beautiful present accompanied by a few happy remarks Congratulations were the order of exercises for some time after the presentation ceremonies and the occasion will long be cherished by those present

GRAND RALLY.

PEOPLE'S MASS MEETING AT MASONIC HALL

This evening there will be a grand mass meeting of the people at Masonic Hall There will be a band of music in attendance and bon fires fire works, etc displayed A number of able speakers are announced to be present who are to address the meeting among which will be W H Effinger Esq, Hon A C Gibbs and others

Abundant accommodations will be provided for all who may attend The intention is to make this the largest and most enthusiastic political demonstration which has been held in Portland for many years A very cordial invitation is extended to the ladies to be present Let all the people rally this evening

BUSINESS NOTICES

Mr William P Wilshire agent of the Hall's Safe and Lock Co has just put into the vault of the Bank of British Columbia a massive burglar proof safe weighing nearly six tons, being one of the largest and finest on the coast It has double folding doors and all is made of eight plates five iron and three steel, making a combined thickness of three and one half inches It is perfectly solid defying powder drills wedges or any other tools burglars may use Eight marine bolts hold each door The left door is secured by one of Hall's Victor Combination Locks and the right hand door by a 12 tumbler double Premier Lock and so arranged that three persons may be required to be present to open the safe The safes of this company are almost universally used on this account—over six hundred having been sold during the short time the company has been represented

"MISSION WORK IN PORTLAND"

Under the above caption the [illegible]

We have spoken once or twice before of the missionary efforts of the Church in Portland The population of the city is about 15 000 For the spiritual care of this number we have Trinity Church capable of seating nearly [illegible] persons St Stephen's Chapel in connection with St Helen's Hall St Timothy's Chapel at the Grammar School St David's Church East Portland and St Matthew's Chapel in the extreme South and Trinity Mission in the extreme North suburbs of the city

The last two are missions proper St Matthew's was begun about a year ago and Trinity about seven months since A Sunday School at [illegible] A M and sermon and service at 7 P M are regularly maintained at the former and evening service sermon and Sunday school will hereafter be held in the latter The number of Sunday School scholars connected with each is about forty At St Matthew's evening service the attendance [illegible] as large as sixty

Lately Mr Rosenberg baptized two adults and three children at the one and the Rector of Trinity Church expects to baptize half a dozen children at the other next Sunday or the Sunday following

The school in Watson's Addition has labored under great disadvantages in the need of a place to assemble All winter from twenty five to forty children and six teachers have been crowded into a room twelve feet square There is now building a neat chapel 20x30 feet, with a chancel 10x10 which will seat from 75 to 100 persons This chapel will cost about $600 The lot is valued at from $300 to $400

JEWISH SERVICES.

Yesterday was the Hebrew Feast of Weeks or Pentecost a day celebrated in commemoration of the delivery of the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai to the children of Israel Appropriate services were held in the Synagogues Ahavi Sholum and Beth Israel and the attendance was unusually large In the latter the rite of confirmation was administered to a number of girls The Synagogue was handsomely decorated with evergreens and flowers and the legend "Glory to God" above which was the holy name of Jehovah in Hebrew letters worked in similar manner was hung in front of the ark After the usual morning services the following girls marched in front of the pulpit Augusta Selling Henrietta Waldman Henrietta Rosenblatt Sarah Lyon Sarah Loeb Emma Fleischner The Rev M May addressed the children in a very feeling manner after which the girls offered a number of fervent prayers The reverend minister then questioned the girls in regard to the cardinal doctrines of the Hebrew faith to which they responded reciting the articles of faith The reverend minister then again addressed them in regard to their duties toward their parents and fellow men after which one of the girls offered another prayer The girls [illegible] by the reverend minister to receive his blessings after which he delivered a very eloquent sermon to the congregation taking for his text the passages from the Scripture "Hear O Israel the Lord our God the Lord is one Do unto thy neighbor as thou would wish to be done by" We are [illegible] that our space will not permit us to publish the sermon as it was really instructive

THE STORY TELLER

HOW BERNEZ GOT A FORTUNE AND A WIFE

(From the French.)

Plouhinec is a poor hamlet beyond Hennebon towards the sea. You see nothing round it but landes with here and there little osier beds, and never has it been known to produce enough grass to rear an ox nor bran enough to fatten a pig.

But if the inhabitants lack corn and beasts they have more stones than would be required to build a city, and just outside the hamlet they have a large plain in which the Korigans (fairies) have planted two long rows of stones which might be taken for an avenue if it led anywhere. It was near here on the bank of the river Intel that a man named Marzinne formerly dwelt, who was a rich man for that part, that is to say, he could salt a pig every year, had as much black bread as he chose to eat, and could treat himself with a new pair of wooden shoes every year at the Feast of Pentecost. Therefore he passed for a man of note and a proud man in his country; also he had refused the hand of his sister Rozenn to several young bachelors who lived by the daily sweat of their brow. Among these there was one named Bernez, a good laborer and a good Christian, but who possessed nothing but good will. He had become acquainted with Rozenn when she was very little, and as she grew up his love grew stronger and stronger, until at last he was deeply in love.

The refusal by Marzinne to give him his sister was a great heart-break to him, still he did not lose courage, because Rozenn continued to receive him well. Now it was one Christmas Eve that the weather was so bad that they could not go to church, all the people on the farm, and many of the neighbors, including [illegible] Marzinne's house, supper of black puddings and stirabout mixed with honey to be prepared, hence all eyes were turned towards the fireplace save Bernez, who had no eyes for anything besides his dear Rozenn.

The bowl containing the wooden spoons was placed on the table, and the long stools were arranged ready for those who so impatiently awaited the moment when the bowl should receive the contents of the pot, when lo! the door was pushed roughly open and an old man entered, and wished everybody a good appetite. The old man was a beggar belonging to Pluvigner who never by any chance entered a church, and who was held in dread by honest people. He was accused of bewitching cattle, of causing smut in the grain, and of being able to change himself into the likeness of any animal when he pleased.

Nevertheless, as he wore the garb of poverty the farmer allowed him to draw near the fire; moreover, he caused a three legged stool to be given him, together with a portion of food like the other guests. When the sorcerer had eaten his food he asked to be allowed to sleep, and Bernez took him into the stable where there was only an old ass and a half starved ox. The beggar laid himself down between them for the sake of the warmth, and was about to go sleep when midnight sounded. Then the ass pricked up his long ears and turned toward the [illegible] and said in a friendly tone:

"Well cousin, how has it fared with you since the last Christmas I spoke to you?"

Instead of replying to the question the horned animal cast a sidelong glance at the mendicant, and said in a grumbling tone:

"It was well worth while for the Trinity to accord us the gift of speech every Christmas Eve in recompense for our ancestors having been present at the birth of Jesus, if we are to have for an auditor a rascal like this beggar."

"You are very proud, my Lord Bellow," replied the ass, gayly. "It seems to me that I have the most right to complain—I, who come of a family the head of which formerly carried Christ when he made his entry into Jerusalem, as is shown by the cross which, since that time, has been imprinted on our shoulders; but I know how to content myself with what has been accorded me. Besides, don't you see that the sorcerer is asleep?"

"All his sorceries have not yet enriched him," replied the ox, "and he damns himself for a very trifling matter. The devil had not even told him of the good chance there will be close here in a few days."

"What good chance?" asked the ass.

"What, don't you know that once in every hundred years the stones in the plain of Plouhinec go to the river Intel to drink, and that during this time the treasures they hide remain uncovered?"

"Ah, I remember now," interposed the ass, "but the stones return so quickly to their places that it is impossible to avoid being crushed by them unless you have a sprig of trefoil in your hand."

"Also," added the ox, "the treasures you may thus carry off become dust and ashes if you do not give in return a baptized soul; the death of a Christian is necessary before the demon will allow you to enjoy the riches of Plouhinec in peace."

The mendicant listened to this conversation almost without daring to breathe.

"Ah! dear animals," thought he to himself, "you have made me richer than all the inhabitants of Vennes and Lorient put together. Don't disturb yourselves, the Pluvigner sorcerer will not in future damn himself for nothing." The next morning he got up and went into the fields to seek for the trefoil. He had to search long and to plunge deeper into the country, where the air is warmer and the plants remain always green. Finally on New Year's Eve, he reappeared at Plouhinec with the mien of a weasel that had found its way to the dovecote. As he was passing along the landes he saw Bernez very busy in cutting something on the highest of stones.

"God save me," cried the sorcerer, laughing, "do you want to scoop yourself a house in that great stone?"

"No," said Bernez, quietly, "but as I have got nothing to do just now, I thought if I traced a cross on one of these cursed stones, I should do something acceptable to God, who sooner or later will reward me for it."

"You want something of Him, then?" observed the old man.

"Every Christian desires Him to save his soul," replied the young man.

"And haven't you something to say to Him about Rozenn?" asked the mendicant in a low tone.

Bernez looked hard at him.

"Ah, you know that," he resumed. "After all there is neither shame nor sin in it, since if I seek the girl it is to lead her before the priest. Unfortunately, Marzinne desires to have a brother-in-law who can count more shillings than I possess farthings."

"And what if I were to cause thee to have more pounds than Marzinne himself possesses shillings," said the sorcerer in a low tone.

"You!" cried Bernez.

"I."

"What do you want of me for that?"

"Only to be remembered in thy prayers."

"There will be no necessity to compromise my salvation?"

"There will be no necessity for anything but courage."

"Then tell me what is to be done," said Bernez, dropping his hammer. "I am prepared, even if it were to expose myself to 20 deaths, for I have less desire to live than to marry."

When the mendicant saw that he was so well disposed, he told him how that night the treasures of the landes would be laid open, but without telling him how to evade the stones at the moment when they returned. The young man thought that nothing more was required than boldness and promptitude, therefore he said:

"As truly as there are three Persons in God I will profit, old man, by the opportunity, and I shall always hold a portion of my blood at your service for what you have told me. Leave me to finish the cross I have begun to cut on this stone, and then I will join you near the little osier bed at the hour agreed upon."

Bernez kept his word, and arrived at the place agreed upon an hour before midnight. He found the mendicant already there, provided with a bag in each hand, and a third hung round his neck.

"Sit down, young man," said he, "and think of what you will do when you have gold, silver and precious stones at your disposal."

The young man seated himself on the ground and replied:

"When I shall have silver at my disposal I will give to my gentle Rozenn everything she wishes to have, from cotton to silk, from bread up to oranges."

"And when you have unlimited gold?" added the sorcerer.

"When I have as much gold as I want I will make all Rozenn's relatives rich, and all the friends of her relatives to the uttermost bounds of the parish."

"And when you have precious stones by handfuls?" concluded the old man.

"Then," cried Bernez, "I would make every man on earth rich and happy, and will say to them that Rozenn willed it."

While they were conversing thus the hour of midnight arrived. At that instant there was a great noise on the landes, and they saw by the light of the stars all the great stones leave their places and dart toward the river Intel. They descended the side of the hill with a rushing noise and striking against each other like giants who had taken [illegible] too much; they passed the two men and disappeared in the darkness.

Then the mendicant [illegible] towards the plain, followed by Bernez, [illegible] the places where a few seconds before [illegible] stood they saw holes filled with [illegible] precious [illegible] of admiration and [illegible] his pockets, but the sorcerer had not given him the trouble to make the sign of the cross; he at once began to fill his bags, all the time keeping a sharp ear towards the river, that he might hear when the stones were on their way back. He had just filled the third bag and Bernez his pockets, when a dull murmuring sound was heard like that of a storm in the distance. It was the stones, which were returning from the river to resume their places. They rushed along like coursers at full speed, crushing all before them. When the young man saw them he [illegible] and exclaimed:

"Virgin Mary, we are lost!"

"I am not," said the sorcerer, holding [illegible] of the talisman with which he had provided himself, "for my salvation is at my hand; but it is necessary that a Christian should lose his life to assure my possession of these riches, and [illegible] put thee in my way; therefore renounce Rozenn and prepare to die."

While he was thus speaking, the army of stones arrived, but he held his magical boquet towards them and they divided, and some went on his right hand and some on his left. Bernez believed that his last hour had come, and shut his eyes, expecting instant death, but a great stone stopped just before him and served as a barrier to defend him from the others. [illegible] opened his eyes and saw that [illegible] he had engraved the cross. But [illegible] so well with the sorcerer. It struck him down and passed over him as if he had been an insect.

Thus Bernez collected the gold and silver and precious stones and was a rich man, and married Rozenn, and they lived happily all the rest of their days.

Exchange on San Francisco at ½@1 per cent premium.

Wheat in Liverpool via mail advices from San Francisco 12s 4d@12s 8d for average California and 12s 8d@13s for club.

Our local and State finances continue easy, the banks generally having a fair supply of money, and but little difficulty is experienced by borrowers in getting their wants met at satisfactory rates whenever the security offered is first class. There appears to be no general pressing demand for money for legitimate purposes, nor is such demand anticipated until preparations are made to commence the fall trade. Merchants and manufacturers here [illegible] some extent and more so at the East, seem to regard the future with some uncertainty, and therefore feel a little doubt about extending or increasing their business materially in any direction. How this want of full confidence is to be overcome is a question not at all easily solved. It was hoped by many that the President's veto of the currency bill would tend to produce a more confident feeling among business men, but after the lapse of so much time it is not yet manifest, and our exchanges from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other commercial centers east of the Mississippi indicate no more increased activity than is inevitable at this season. There is no ground for fear that Congress can pass any inflation measure over the President's veto, but the fact that the matter is a subject of Congressional agitation seems to be sufficient to keep business in an uncomfortable if not really embarrassing state of suspense, and prevents business men from launching in enterprises until the financial elements are more settled. It is now doubtful whether any action of Congress this session will or could restore the confidence in all sections of the country which prevailed prior to the panic of last fall. It may take time and that alone may bring affairs back to a perfectly healthy state.

Wheat and Wool.

For the production of these two commodities there is perhaps no country in the world that can much excel the State of Oregon. Suppose, for instance, one tenth of the agricultural lands in the State were put in wheat and properly cultivated, the product would not be less than one hundred million bushels. This is upon the amount of cultivable lands as estimated at 10,000 square miles, and is mentioned not that such amount is likely to be produced in the next score of years, but as an illustration of the vast resources of our State. It is, however, safe to predict that with the prevalence of remunerative prices the production in the course of ten years might be increased to at least 50,000,000 bushels, besides which vast amount our expected exports of from four to five million bushels this year seems insignificant. Again, many of the vast plains of Eastern Oregon and the foothills of the Umpqua and Rogue river valleys have the capacity of sustaining ten times the number of sheep that now occupy them, so that the immense commerce in the two products that might and will some day be sustained by our State can be conceived.

This season the certainty of an abundant yield of the fall sown wheat is fixed beyond every peradventure, if we may possibly except heavy rains in harvest, a circumstance not in the range of probability. And the spring sown grain so far promises equally well, and only the additional exception of long continued drouth in June and the first half of July, which no one predicts, is against the chances for an abundant yield. So it may be regarded as highly probable that the wheat surplus this year will be from 25 to 30 per cent greater than last, and reach at the lowest estimate 4,000,000 bushels.

The wool clip this year will be at a low estimate 3,000,000 pounds, so that some reliable calculation can be made as to the amount of tonnage required and the addition to the wealth of our State that will be made this year. If we export 4,000,000 bushels of wheat and 3,000,000 pounds of wool, we shall need 125 vessels of 1,000 tons each, and at the prices now ruling in this market the value would be $[illegible]. Add to this what will be disbursed for numerous other products of our State and it will be seen that the commerce of Oregon for 1874 cannot be an insignificant matter in the eyes of business men of the world. She will just be beginning to show them what she can do.

Eastern Wool Markets.

A New York letter of May 1[illegible] says:

In Wool there has been a fair movement the past few days and the market at present has rather a firmer appearance. The demand has principally been for California Wool, and spring clip opens the season at high figures. Advices from California indicate a firm feeling there, which imparts confidence to dealers at this point. The stock of fall California is becoming materially reduced and is held very strong, and holders are confident of obtaining an advance in the near future. Shipping has sold to the extent of 136 bales, but manufacturers are rather backward about handling it if fall can be obtained at present quotations, which [illegible] considered low when compared with the prices asked for spring. Sales amounted to 611 bales and [illegible] at [illegible] for new spring and [illegible] for fall, [illegible] some secured lambs on private terms. At Boston the market is less active, owing to the fact that stocks are light and partly to the dullness in the Woolen Goods trade. The tendency of prices is upward. The scarcity of other clips has turned the attention of manufacturers to spring clip California, and sales have been large. Prices of choice are steady, ranging from 24 to 35c for fall. Sales of [illegible] 000 lbs California at 27[illegible]c for spring, [illegible] for pulled.

Count Oregon as the best California Wool and the status of our product in the New York market can be learned from the above.

A London dispatch of May 1[illegible] says:

The second series of trade sales of [illegible] commenced April [illegible] with a total of [illegible]. Heavy supplies were expected, but the actual arrivals considerably exceeded the largest estimates, and in the rather insufficient condition of trade there [illegible] accumulation of wool [illegible] it has not failed to produce a reduction in prices. [illegible] a second lower than at the close of the March sale, the decline being strongest in the [illegible] inferior quality, lots of which are in plentiful supply. The fall is [illegible] marked in scoured [illegible] and still more moderate in greasy kind, which [illegible] one penny below March quotations, and even reaches them occasionally. The [illegible] of buyers is good, and at the start [illegible] fairly animated competition, [illegible] the pressure of heavy supply and [illegible] time to work them out. The Committee [illegible] have decided to fix the commencement of the third series at the 18th of August. This [illegible] which necessarily entails the abandonment of the fifth series, is likely to strengthen the market by stimulating competition and creating confidence in the stability of prices. The present series will last till the 17th of June.

Freights and Charters.

We now have now only one vessel in port—the Ceylon, [illegible] of the Salem mill [illegible]. She will carry [illegible] wheat and about the same amount of flour. [illegible]
